Providing a Stage for Youth Leadership

The Asia Water Challenge is an innovative competition aimed at inspiring and engaging the next generation water and climate leaders. Organised in countries across Asia since 2010, the program has been challenging students and young professionals to develop their own original ideas and solutions to real-life water and climate problems in the region.

Each edition of the Asia Water Challenge is designed to demonstrate the power of youth leadership in a specific context, which may focus on, for example: development of innovative solutions and approaches, stakeholder and community engagement, awareness raising, cross-generational learning, digital transformation etc.

Depending on the program goals, a rich mix of activities are provided to the young participants, which may include expert training, workshops, field work, solution implementation and knowledge exchange sessions. Participants are guided by professional mentors, who share their knowledge and experience during the program.

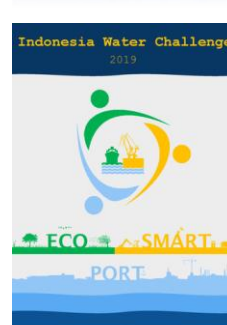

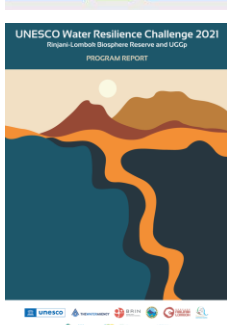

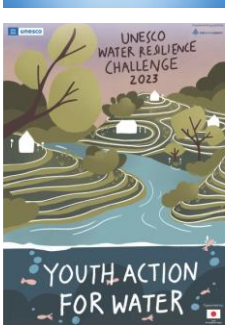

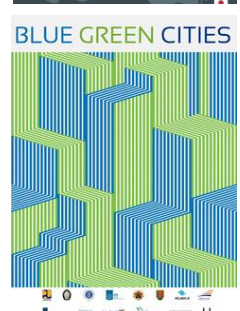

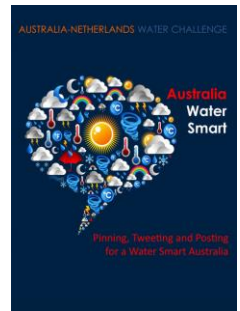

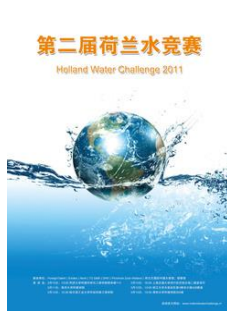

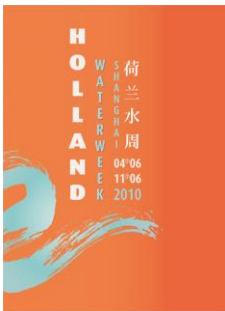

Youth Action!

For Youth to be a driver of transformational change, we believe it needs more than ideas: it needs Youth to demonstrate that they can make a concrete and tangible contribution to sustainable water management, i.e. to demonstrate that their original ideas and solutions have potential for actual implementation and deliver real impact on-the-ground.
